

Paul Manganelli, M.D.
Pain Medicine

Dr. Manganelli is certified by the American Board of Pain Medicine and the American Board of Anesthesiology. He graduated from Georgetown University Medical School of Medicine. After completing his residency at Northwestern University, he practiced pain medicine and anesthesia in Germany and Bosnia as a major in the United States Army.

He became a member of the Edward Hospital medical staff in 1999, where he also teaches medical students. For over ten years Dr. Manganelli has compassionately taken care of patients living with pain. He is a member of the International Spinal Injections Society, the American Academy of Pain Medicine, the American Society of Interventional Pain Physicians and the American Society of Anesthesiologists.